

COUNSELLING PROCESS

On referral from the police, clients in the program attend a compulsory counselling session with an LWB PDDI counsellor.

Counsellors will make contact to remind clients of their scheduled appointment. If there is no response from the client after reasonable attempts the matter is referred back to the SAPol for further action.

During the appointment the client is given an overview of the initiative, their expected involvement and outcomes, and they are expected to give consent for the session to proceed.

Clients who feel that they need legal advice can terminate the session and have the appointment rescheduled within 28 days.

A comprehensive psychosocial assessment using the age appropriate ASSIST screening tool is administered and an appropriate level of education, brief intervention or referral given for either one or two sessions.

After successful completion of the PDDI session or undertaking the client is given a Notice of Compliance which acquits them of the charge.

Where appropriate, up to eight voluntary sessions of on-going counselling sessions are offered.

POLICE DRUG DIVERSION INITIATIVE

Life Without Barriers (LWB) is the authorised provider of the South Australian Police Drug Diversion Initiative (PDDI).

The PDDI is part of a nationally agreed approach to illicit drugs being implemented in all Australian States and Territories. The approach combines a strong national action against drug supply with early intervention for drug users to help reduce the prevalence and harms associated with drug use in Australia.

In South Australia the Initiative, also referred to as a diversion, was introduced for both adults and young people in late 2001, following the amendments to the Controlled Substances Act 1984.

PDDI counselling provides assessment, education, support and referral for individuals referred to the program by the Police after being referred by South Australian Police (SAPol) as per the legislation.

LWB offers the PDDI services in targeted country regions of South Australia, (Fleurieu Peninsula -Victor Harbour, Kangaroo Island and Whyalla).

THE LWB APPROACH

We see people as individuals who have unique needs and tailor our services to meet their needs by adopting a client centred approach.

We adopt a harm-minimisation framework in the Alcohol and Other Drug programs, supporting our clients to identify and achieve their identified treatment goals.

Our goal is to help each client see their personal strengths and use these to achieve long lasting changes in their lives.

Our services are designed and delivered in ways that are inclusive, appropriate and respectful to all people, particularly people who are often disadvantaged such as Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, CALD and LGBTI Communities.

PDDI COUNSELLING SERVICE

The service is a statutory requirement and clients are expected to actively participate to be compliant or the matter is referred back to police for further action.

Services are available to all persons from the age of 10 years who have been referred through the Police Drug Diversion Line.

Clients may then choose to enrol in a further eight (8) sessions of counselling support.

Counselling sessions are held at our local offices and will operate within normal business hours – telephone and online support sessions will be available where significant barriers to accessing office based appointments exist.

All LWB services are designed and delivered in ways that are culturally appropriate. We engage with local Aboriginal elders and culturally and linguistically diverse communities to ensure our services and centres are welcoming and culturally safe.

LWB's PDDI counselling provides a unique opportunity to work with individuals at a point of crisis and avoid going to court. Instead, it provides a health-based intervention that encourages individual's to reflect on the effects of drug use on their lives, and make informed choices to help change this pattern of behaviour.
