This book tells you how Life Without Barriers is working a special university to improve the way we support you.

A university is like a big school where people can learn new things. The university we are working with is called 'La Trobe'.

This university has looked at lots of ways that people with disability can be helped by providers like Life Without Barriers.

The university has made a special way of supporting people with disability called Active Support.

Active support is about you having help to do the things you want to do in the way you want to do them.

It means Life Without Barriers will support you more to be part of activities you like and to do things in a way where you are included.

To provide you with Active support, everyone in Life Without Barriers will have some training so they understand why it is important for you.
