- Life Without Barriers also has lots of staff.

Life Without Barriers wants more staff who work with Life Without Barriers to be people with disability.

- This is because people with disability have a lot to offer at work.

- The boss of Life Without Barriers is called Claire Robbs.

Claire wants more companies to be better at supporting people with disability to work with them.

LIFE WITHOUT BARRIERS

- Life Without Barriers believes everyone has the right to work, if they choose to.

- It can take people with disability longer to find a job than people without a disability.

- This can be because some employers, or people who give jobs, have old fashioned ideas about how people with disability work.

- Life Without Barriers knows these old ideas are untrue.

People with disability have a right to work and are good workers.

- Claire Robbs said companies should make their workplaces more welcoming for people with disability.

3 December
International Day of People with Disability

- Claire also said a good time to start doing this is on International Day of People with Disability.

- This day is on December 3.
It is a day to celebrate and think about people with disability.

- To help companies include more people with disability, Life Without Barriers has made a list of things they can do.

- Companies can find information on the Life Without Barriers website:
